Eval. Notes: The site is a small family owned print shop. It was selected for Inspection as the result of a complaint from a former disgruntled employee that was apparently known by the owners. I found no Hazardous Waste, the inks are now soy or water emulsions not requiring heavy solvent based systems for removal and cleanup. All cleanup materials for the press system are water based or water/alcohol based. There are a few aerosol cans that I discussed with Nathan. He indicated that they were expensive and are used to the last drop. I reviewed the caution words and ignitability. There was no Hazardous Waste present at the time of the inspection. I reviewed the rag rule with Nathan, they are presently using a laundry out of New Jersey. I reviewed SDS sheets for chemicals used and found most wastes were mixtures that after use were not still characteristic of a Hazardous Waste. I found no violations, I inspected them as a CESQG, only because of the Universal Waste /fluorescent bulbs. The region sent a TKU.
